Keynote Speaker: Dr. Luvelle Brown

Superintendent Ithaca Schools

Sponsored by Discovery Education

Dr. Luvelle Brown has spent over 25 years cultivating a culture of love, liberation and belonging in schools and communities across the nation. Since January 2011, he has served as Superintendent of the Ithaca City School District in New York state where student achievement has increased significantly. Dr. Brown's leadership has inspired and supported dozens of school leaders from his cabinet/leadership/mentorship programs as they have assumed superintendent and other executive leadership positions, most of whom are women and racial minority candidates. Additionally, Dr. Brown has modeled and fostered loving skillsets and mindsets for numerous educators through his adjunct faculty work, facilitation of various professional development cohorts, leadership of the AASA Equity Cohort, mentorship in AASA aspiring superintendent programs and facilitation of the popular Equity Talks, a live webinar series that has attracted thousands of global educators seeking to cultivate equity and excellence. Dr. Brown received the prestigious 2022 Dr. Effie H. Jones Humanitarian Award.

Dr. Brown founded and became the co-chair of the New York State Council of School Superintendent's (NYSCOSS) Commission on Diversity and Inclusivity, and was recognized in 2017 as the New York State Superintendent of the Year. Dr. Brown is a highly regarded speaker and workshop facilitator addressing a range of topics for local, regional, and national audiences. He recently served as a Commissioner for the Elle Learning 2025: National Commission on Student-Centered, Equity-Focused Education. Brown has published numerous articles, and is the author of the book Culture of Love: Cultivating a Transformative and Positive Organizational Culture.
