Leading and Learning in the Digital Age

WHAT: Lewiston-Porter in cooperation with Erie 1 BOCES is proud to host speaker, George Couros, of the educator’s Twittersphere. He has worked extensively with students, parents, educators, school leaders and central office administration. George believes that by creating an open and connected environment in our schools, we are creating learning opportunities for our students that will help them be leaders in the future, as well as today. George will be presenting “Leading and Learning in a Digital Age” based upon his own experience of what it means to be a connected educator and the importance of using social media to help enhance the learning opportunities for educators, as well as students. Doing this together is an amazing opportunity because it helps to create true “learning organizations.” A must for all school leaders and leaders of learning.
