Event: IRT#722  Forensic Science: Offering Real-Life Applications

Offered in conjunction with Erie 1 BOCES and Bertino Forensics: Forensic Science offers real life application of math, science, technology, history, and politics. Through high interest, hands-on activities, students collaborate and employ critical thinking skills to solve crimes. Improve student learning, oral presentations and literary skills through this high interest course that applies math and science to real life situations.

As experienced classroom teachers, each with over 34 years of high school teaching experience, we emphasize course content, how to teach heterogeneously grouped classes and how to organize your classroom and lab activities.

To assist your teachers with organizing and teaching a forensics course, we provide all participants with:

- Resource DVD containing SLO (Student Learning Objectives), websites, additional Power Point Presentations (not included with textbook resources), book list of high interest books for additional outside reading and a list of free, forensic magazines
- Ideas on how to teach forensics on a shoe-string budget
- Sherlock Bones CD (if forensic anthropology is a chosen topic)
